Art Unit: 1733

1) Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-21, drawn to a tire having a sensor with the first tread element, classified in class 152, subclass 209.5.
- II. Claims 22-29, drawn to method for detecting an adherence characteristic, classified in class 73, subclass 146.

2) The inventions are distinct, each from the other because:

Inventions I and II are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product such as a tire having no sensor within the first tread element (the sensor being external to the tire itself). Alternatively, the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product such as a process in which a signal that represents a tangential force is generated but an adherence potential of the tire / available adherence margin is not produced (e.g. the generated signal representing tangential force is used to determine compensation of residual aligning torque).

3) This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

species A - method for detecting an adherence characteristic including producing an estimate of the friction potential in the contact surface of the first measuring element and producing an estimate of adherence potential of the tire wherein a signal representing vertical force is generated; and species B -method for detecting an adherence characteristic including producing an indication that characterizes an available adherence margin from a function of the first signal between the instant when entry into the contact area is detected and the instant when the characteristic variation is detected.

If Applicant elects Group II (method), then Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claim is generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.

4) Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

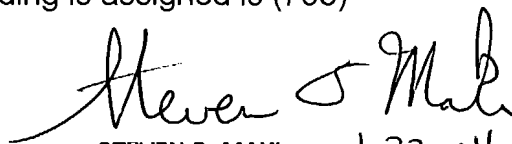

5) A telephone call was made to Richard Berkley on 1-8-04 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

6) Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

7) Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Steven D. Maki whose telephone number is (571) 272-1221. The examiner can normally be reached on Mon. - Fri. 7:30 AM - 4:00 PM.

If attempts to reach the examiner by telephone are unsuccessful, the examiner's supervisor, Richard Crispino can be reached on (571) 272-1226. The fax phone number for the organization where this application or proceeding is assigned is (703) 872-9306.
